Our Rifles are Ready---Look Out.

A SONG OF THE TIMES.

Nearer the muttering thunders roll,
Blacker and heavier frowns the sky—
Yet our daunitess English soul
Faces the storm with a steady eye;
Hands are strong where hearts are stout,
Our rifles are ready—look out!

No one wishes the storm to roll here,
No one cares such a storm to raise;
And in brotherhood not in fear,
Only for peace an Englishman prays
Yet he may shout, in the midst of
Our rifles are ready—look out!

Keep to your own like an honest man, And here's our hand and here's our heart; Let the world see how wisely you can Play to the end a right neighborly part. But if mischief is creeping about! Our rifles are ready—look out!

No defiance is on our lips,

Nothing but kindness greets you here;
Still in the storm our dolphin ships
Round the Eddystone dart and steer;
And on shore—no doubt, no doubt—
Our rifles are ready—look out!

Not defiance, but only defence,
Hold we forth for humanity's sake;
And with the help of Omnipotence,
We shall stand when the mountains quake;
Only in Him our hearts are stout;
Our rifles are ready—look out!—Tennison

A Mad Elephant at Large.

A Mad Elephant at Large.

An exciting scene was witnessed in Williamsburgh about 10 o'clock on Friday morning, at Van Amburgh's Menagerie. While a lad was unloading saw-dust from a wagon within the exhibition tent, Old Hannibal, the elephant, broke out into one of his periodical lits of fury, and making towards the horse aimed a blow at him with his trunk. Missing the animal, the blow fell upon the boy, but with greatly diminished force, or he must have been instantly killed. Again he attacked the horse, and the maddened animal, after a severe hug from the elephant's trunk, darted off, dashing the vehicle against the centre pole, disengaging himself at the same time, and running into the street. Hannibal deliberately tore the wagon to pieces, flinging the wheels about like toys. The cages containing the wild beasts next engaged his attention; and from the reckless way in which he turned over and smashed up the habitations of the bears, hyens, wolves, zebras, and other wild animals, it was probable that the whole menagerie would soon be let loose in the streets.

The monster went from one cage to anmals, it was probable that the whole menagerie would soon be let loose in the streets.

The monster went from one cage to another, upsetting them in turn, and smashing them in pieces. His keeper made his appearance about this time, and attempted to put in practice his usual devices to gain the ascendancy over the elephant, but his efforts were unavailing. Hannibal savagely sallied forth into the street trumpeting defiance, and dragging after him the chain with which he was usually fastened. The keepers followed him down the street into an open space, not far distant from the menagerie grounds, and with the aid of one or two others succeeded in getting him into an excavation made for a cellar. He managed to chase back his pursuers, however, and was again followed into a stoneyard near by, where he was a second time impeded in his progress. He was kept here until the long pikes and hooks of Young America Hook and Ladder Company were brought upon the ground, and manned by the increasing crowd, to be used in suppressing the crazed insurrectionist. Thus, attacked in all directions, he was hooked and piked in so many places that he found it inconvenient, and nearly impossible, to move. His ears, trunk, sides, back and limbs were studded with pikes, and grappled and held with hooks. His attention was then diverted until his keeper could venture up behind him and throw a rope about his legs.

This was done with such celerity that the rope was passed round and round again, and secured before the beast became aware of what was being done, and he was captured. The crowd had by this time increased to thousands, and had Old Hannibal effected an what was being done, and he was captured. The crowd had by this time increased to thousands, and had Old Hannibal effected an escape from the hooks and pikes, it is probable that a great number of the speciators would have lost their lives. They were urged by the showmen to keep out of the way, but all that was said or done could scarcely induce them to do otherwise than push forward to see what was going on.

But Hannibal was not totally conquered after all. A stone eight feet long and two feet square having been chained to his legs, and the pike-poles laid by, his Majesty embraced an opportunity to commence the war. He put the spearmen to flight, and chased them about the stone yard, dragging the immense building stone after him as if it were a stick. The crowd scattered precipitately. With some daring the spearmen again triumphed, and the elephant was this time more severely dealt with. His legs were again fastened with a heavy chain, and he was tumbled over and speared, and stabbed with pitch forks, the instrumeats entering into the depth of three or four inches at every thrust, the blood flowing in streams. He endured the torture without flinching for some time, but the copious blood-letting at length reduced, it is always considered safe to release a ferocious beast. Hannibal was then driven back, a conquered hero, to the show-ground, where he was securely fastened by means of heavy chains.

This elephant was brought to America in the year 1844 by Mr. Van Amburgh, and is quered hero, to the show-ground, where he was securely fastened by means of heavy chains.

This elephant was brought to America in the year 1844 by Mr. Van Amburgh, and is one of the largest of his species. His height is 13 feet 4 inches. He is claimed to be one-third larger than any other elephant ever brought to this country. Bayard Taylor testifies that he is considerably larger than the majority of elephants he had met with either in Asia or Africa. When Hannibal was imported, in 1844, it was thought that he was already old, but as he has been growing ever since, the showmen have concluded that he is still young—the natural term of life of the species being from 300 to 450 years.

This animal's reputation was formerly almost unequalled for viciousness, but during the last five years he had apparently reformed, and became docile in character. Before that time, he had repeatedly broken loose, and had killed, on different occasions, as many as seven persons. The last exploit of the kind which Hannibal undertook previous to the present one, was in 1853, when he sprung open the door of his cage, and after effecting a pretty general demolition of the Company's cages and transportation wargons, ran away mine miles into the company's cages and transportation of the Company's cages and transportation wargons, ran away mine miles into the country before he was captured.

The damage sustained by Van Amburgh & Co., by the waggons and cages spoiled, amounted to a considerable sum. The wild animals which he released were all secured with difficulty.—New York Tribune.

Nor so Bad.—A young man, clad in homespun, was standing in Court street, a few days since, devouring a doughnut, when he was accosted by one of a half-dozen genteelly dressed city idlers, with "Jes come deown?"

"Yeas, guess I have; great place this, ain't it, yeou?" satd the countryman.

"Tis so, bub; how's your marm?" asked the city buck, bent on sport with "greeny."

"Wall, she's purty well, she sent me down on business."

"She did? What kind of business are you on?"

"Why, she wanted me to come down to Bostin and look reound and find half a dozen of the biggest fules in Bostin, and bring 'em up country, to edicate 'em; and I rather guess I've got my eye on 'em, neow;" said the stranger, taking in the whole crowd at a glance.

Injustice to Colonial Lawyers.

Educated and trained by the most acute and polished intellects, the bar of Great Britain and her Colonies has produced from time immemorial some of the brightest ornaments of society and the greatest benefactors of the human race. Like the chemist who analyzes everything material, so the jurist analyzes every question of law and equity affecting either the sovereign, the subject, or the nation. No profession is more practical; none has a wider range; nor in none has been found bolder, abler, or more eloquent advocates of the rights of the people.

In the colonies, if there is one class more than another that may be justly dignified with the title of colonial aristocracy, it is the members of the bar. Usually of the best families; carefully educated; trained under jurists of ability; impressed with high notions of the profession; only admitted after a searching examination as to their proficiency in the mathematics and the classics, and in the common and statute law,-the colonial bar justly ranks high, opening as it does to men of ability and ambition an avenue to the highest offices in the gift of the colonies.

Greater care is taken in Canada than in England in regard to admission to practice in the courts. None can be admitted without a satisfactory examination before the Law Society as to their thorough knowledge of mathematics and the classics, before they are examined as to their knowledge of the common and statute law. In England the examination is solely on the common statute law. But notwithstanding the care taken to give a high tone to the profession in the eastern provinces, many of our readers will doubtless be startled to learn that colonial lawyers are only permitted to practice in the courts of Vancouver Island and British Columbia by the courtesy of the judges.

In England Colonial Attorneys may be admitted to practice under the 20 and 21 Vic. cap 49, by undergoing an examination. By the Order of Coancil constituting the superior courts of these Colonies they are prohibited. "Such persons only as have been admitted Barristers in England or Ireland, or advocates of the Court of Sessions of Scotland, or to the degree of Doctor of Civil Laws at the University of Oxford, Cambridge or Dublin, shall be enrolled as barristers; such persons only as have been admitted to practice as Attorneys or Solicitors, of any of the courts of Westminster or Dublin, or being Proctors admitted to practice in any eclesiastical court in England, or Ireland, or being Writers to the Signet in Scotland, shall be enrolled as Solicitors." Such is the imperious mandate that treats Colonial Attorneys or Barristers, - British-American, by birth,-treats them on their native soil as no equals of the Solicitors or Barristers from Great Britain or Ireland; treats them as inferior -- rendering it imperatively necessary "to be instructed in the knowledge and practice of the law by some such Barrister or Attorney in these Colonies' before they can be enrolled to practice.

There is no question but this was an oversight on the part of the Imperial Government. It was not the design of her Majesty in Council to exclude any of her colonial subjects from equal privileges with those born in the three kingdoms. Sound national policy is adverse to it. Our own harmony and prosperity, the cultivation of loyalty and attachment to the Crown, forbids giving any other interpretation to the Order in Council constituting our courts than that the wrong thus inflicted has been made by Such glaring errors have only a direct tendency to create sectionalism; what we never wish to see take root in this country. Come from where they may,-remote or near,-British subjects must be treated alike without fear, favor or partiality. We deny the right to show partiality or favor to one to the exclusion of the other; but were there a discriminating choice to be made, it would be far more natural, though not just, to give the preference to colonial lawyers than those of Great Britain,-simply because their training renders them more conversant with those laws and usages which are found best adapted to new countries. In saying this we have no wish to undervalue the Imperial practitioner. He is at home in his profession here as the common and statute law of England prevails, because we have no local inserted.

THE BRITISH COLONIST statutes. But the advantage to be derived from colonial jurists would be in bringing to the notice of the Legislature usages rendering the cumbrous and costly proceedings of the English courts cheaper and more expeditious.

Take the case of a young Canadian lawyer, Mr. Herbert C. Jones, who arrived in this colony last summer, with credentials from the Governor General and Chief Justice of Canada, as an admitted barrister of the Canadian bar. The rules of court prohibited him from being admitted. No other course was open except to article himself to an attorney here before being admitted, or relinquish his profession. No high-spirited member of the colonial bar would submit to such indignity. No colonist with any regard for his rights as a British subject, would occupy the position of an inferior. Finding that neither the Executive, the Chief Justice, nor the Legislature, would do anything to avoid exclusiveness where none was originally intended, and rather than accept as a favor what he claimed as a right, he left for California. The reception met with from the bar there, compares unfavorably with the tardiness or exclusive spirit here. The present session of the California Legislature passed a special act for his relief, rendering him eligible to be admitted to practice in the courts of that State. This was done after a few months residence, whilst here the disabilities have been known for nearly two years, and yet no Act has been passed to remedy the defect and treat colonial practitioners as Englishmen.

The grave consequences that will result from such a policy, if not speedily remedied, are most apparent; it will tend to array class against class; foster sectionalism, and embitter feeling. It is our true policy to blend all in one and be Vancouverians.

What is contended for is simply that Attorneys, Solicitors, or Barristers, duly admitted to practice in the Colonial Courts, may claim to be enrolled here without examination the same as the members of the English, Scotch, or Irish bar.

THE SPANISH IN MOROCCO. The cholera seems destined to accomplish in Morocco what the arms of the Moors are incapable of doing, and will not give the Spaniards as easy a victory as Marshal O'Donnell prophecied. The more we look at the position of Tangiers on the map, the more we are filled with astonishment that it has not long since been occupied and fortified by some European powers for the protection of their commerce in the Mediterranean Louis Phillippe attempted it in 1844, but was deterred by the threats of England after the battle of Isly, and made a peace neither advantageous to himself nor very humiliating to his enemies. The fate of Tangiers seems trembling in the balance; and our own opinion is that Spain will (if England allows it) ostensibly hold the point, but that France will really be the conqueror and possessor.

THE U. S. TREATY WITH CHINA -The last steamer brought intelligence that the Chinese Government had repudiated the treaty with the United States by refusing to open the ports of Suantopi and Talwan, as stipulated. This refusal will give rise to a difficulty, if not a war between the Chinese and the Americans, and it is reasonable to suppose that the latter will join with the English and French to compel the opening of all the ports to foreign commerce. It It would seem to be a very natural alliance-that of England and America.

DEAD BODY FOUND .- Some Indians digging under a bank near the old Indian encampment, at the foot of Store-st., on Tuesday morning, exhumed a dead body which had evidently been there for several weeks. Quite an excitement was caused by the discovery, many supposing from the appearance of the body, that it was that of a white man, killed by Indians. The coroner's jury, however, brought in a verdict that it was the body of an Indian slave who had died from natural causes two months since, and had been buried by his owner. . W

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING .--On Tuesday evening Thos. Esson, having imbibed too much of the ardent, went aboard the Anderson, just as she was about to leave and in attempting to regain the shore, fell into the water and was rescued in a helpless condition by some by-standers. He was taken to the station-house and this morning fined five shillings by the Police Judge for being drunk. WE CAN'T DO IT .- A correspondent signing himself "R," sends us a long communication on the mule-tax, which we must decline publishing on account of its extreme length, Correspondents should bear in mind that articles intended for publication in the Colonist must be short and to the point. Celebration of Washington's Birthday. The 128th anniversary of the birthday of Gen. George Washington, the Father of American Independence, was celebrated yesterday by the American residents of Victoria, in a manner both creditable to themselves and to the occasion.

At an early hour in the morning flags were flying from the express office and many of the stores, and all the American business houses remained closed during the day. There seemed to be a disposition on the part of all to enjoy themselves, which they did to the fullest extent. The weather during the day was fine.

In the afternoon about 500 persons congregated on Beacon Hill, and a salute of thirteen guns was fired from its summit in honor of the day. A fine band was in attendance and discoursed excellent music.

On the return, a procession was formed, headed by three wagons-one containing the band-and marched into town to Yates street, where the assemblage dispersed to their homes.

In the evening, a large number of Americans sat down to a sumptuous dinner at the Colonial Hotel, during the progress of which appropriate toasts and sentiments were diank. At a late hour the company separated for their homes, fully content with the day's enjoyment.

NEW BRICK .- Messrs. Langley Bros., the well-known druggists of Yates street, have contracted for the construction of a substantial one-story brick building, on the site of their present frame. It will be 45 feet front by 50 deep, with an iron front. One-half of the structure will be used for the purposes of their business, and the remainder will be leased as a general store.

PREMIUM .- The Governor offers a premium of $150 to the parties who will first place a steamer on each of the following Lakes: Seton, Anderson and Lillooet. Generosity unparalleled! Who will invest $4,000 for the privilege of gaining $150? Don't all speak at once.

COMMERCIAL. -- In future we shall give a correct report of the state of the Victoria market at every issue of our paper, and make the Colonist a valuable medium of intelligence to commercial men generally. In this we shall spare neither pains nor ex-

BABIES .- The poet says, "a babe in the house is a well-spring of pleasure;" but we think an article of that description in the theatre is a confounded nuisance. There were several "well-springs" at the Colonial on Tuesday night.

GAME.-The Gazette man is afraid of being made "game of." He is such a big goose that he would have been bagged long ago, if he hadn't been ticketed as the property of James Douglas.

His Religion .- A man was asked by one of the officers engaged in taking the census, on Saturday, what he believed in, and replied, " I believe that if it's a fine day to-morrow, it won't rain !"

THE STEAMERS .- The Anderson and Otter sailed on Tuesday for New Westminster. Freights on the latter were $1a$6; on the Anderson, $1 per ton. Both steamers carried full cargoes.

OBSTRUCTION. -A portion of the H. B. Co.'s fence having been blown down on View street on Monday, torms an obstruction which should be at once removed.

THE LEGISLATURE -This body will convene on the 28th inst.

BOLD ROBBERY .- On Tuesday night, between the hours of eight and twelve o'clock, the rear of the hardware store of A. Fellows, on Yates street, was entered through a window, and robbed of thirty dollars in silver coin, which was contained in a cash-box concealed under a mattrass. The thieves evidently took their time, and carried away nothing but the money. Had they looked a little closer, they might have secured $500 in gold; but as it was probably overlooked by accident, they are invited to call again for it.

Police Court.-Not a single case was before the magistrate on Tuesday morning for settlement.

Arrival of the Eliza Anderson.

LATER NEWS FROM THE SOUND.

The steamer Eliza Anderson, with her usual promptitude, arrived here yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. Through the politeness of Dan. Lowell, Esq., purser and U. S. mail agent, we have received copies of the Olympia Pioneer and Steilacoom Herald.

ACCIDENTAL POISONING .- A U. S. soldier named Hezroo, died a short time since at Steilacoom, through eating strawberries which had been preserved in a tin can.

VIGILANCE COMMITTEE .- At Olympia the citizens had formed themselves into a committee of safety to guard the interests of the town. An attempt had been made to burn the place, and the people were determined to drive the thieves and gamblers from their midst.

SPRAGUE. - On the arrival of the Anderson at Seattle, Sprague, who honored this city with his presence for a few weeks, and who was strongly suspected of being a thief, was given one hour in which to quit town, or lose his head. He left.

Loss of the Schooner Pronto.-This schooner went to pieces on Monday, in Port Townsend harbor, during the gale. No lives were lost.

The winds were very low during the month. Snow fell on only one day during the month.

VERY QUEER .- One of the census-takers reports having met a woman on Saturday last, who actually did not know her husband's Christian name nor his age. She said his name was William, Peter or Joeshe guessed it was the latter-and she supposed he was about twelve years of age. They had three children, the eldest about

THE H. V. B. SOCIETY BENEFIT .- The benefit at the Colonial Theatre to the Hebrew Benevolent Society, on Tuesday evening, was a "bumper." The house was crowded to its utmost capacity, and the performances were excellent.

FURNITURE .- Messis. Pierce & Seymour, at the corner of Yates and Douglas streets, have a large assortment of furniture of every style and description, which they offer at reasonable rat s.

PHILHARMONIC S CLETY .- A concert will be given by this Society on Monday evening next.

DECLINED .- "Tenass Shoe-Black's" communication is declined.

A MAYOR CONVICTING HIMSELF.—Mr. H. Brown, late Mayor of Bradford, Eng., gave orders for an information to be laid against himself for having his chimney on fire, and, when it was heard, he attended the court and said that as he had often convicted others he felt that he deserved pun-ishment. He was fined 2s. 6d., and 10s. costs, or "14 days in default."

HANDSOME PRESENT .- The N. Y. News says that the Rev. Dr. Chapin has had a house presented to him by the contributions of a few wealthy men of his congregation. It is situated in Thirty-fifth street, near Fifth Avenue, and cost $24,000 Avenue, and cost $24,000.

The red stains which will sometimes appear on bread long exposed to a humid atmosphere, was regarded in old times as spots of blood, and their appearance on consecrated bread has often given rise to the persecution of heretics.

A large meeting was held at Halifax N. S., lately, to sympathise with the Pope in the present distracted state of Italy. Much opposition was made by many leading Catholics present.

The total amount of postage collected by postmasters in 1859 throughout the whole of England, was £301,200.

The heaviest foreign creditor of the United States is Lord Overstone, to the amount of $350,000.

An Indian boy was arrested yesterday on a charge of stealing a pistol. mes. One of Queen Christina's sons has just entered a French Military Academy. Christy's Minstrel's are still performing in London to crowded houses. Tobacco.-It is said that tobacco can be successfully grown in southern Oregon.

W. T. Davidson, a well-known Lon don actor and dramatist, is dead.
